

Description:

As a CS align student, it is very important to have a place to show ourselves. Building a personal home page which contains our self-introduction, personal experience and contact information is a perfect way to let professors, classmates and future employers to get to know us in a short time.

User Personas

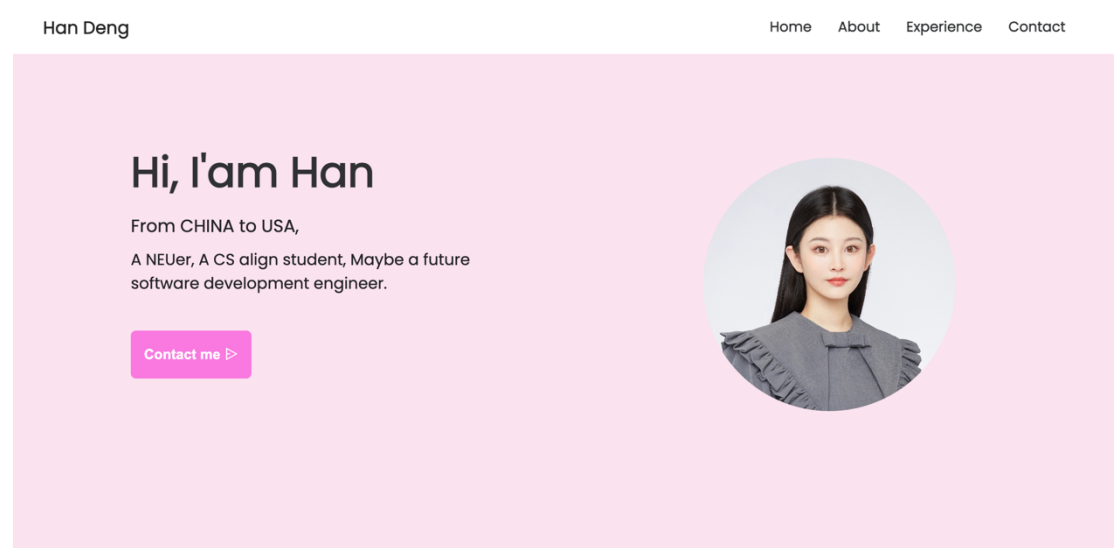

- John the Professor
- Anshul the Classmate
- Bob the Employer
- Lily the HR

User Stories

- As a professor, John wants to know the skill level of his students for better teaching
- As classmate, Anshul want to know more about his classmates' hobbies and experience, so that he can make more friends
- As the future employer, Bob wants to see the CV, works and projects to determine whether someone is a qualified candidate

- As a HR, Lily wants to be able to get the contact information of this person as soon as possible

Design mockups

The homepage will contain four parts: Home, About, Experience and Contact

- Home: there will be a short self-introduction and a photo
- About: there will be the detailed self-introduction and description of CS skills I have already have, hopefully there will show some works and projects I have done.
- Experience: there will be my education and work experience, and hopefully, you can download my CV from this page

- Contact: there will be my contact information and a form that your can leave your contact information and message so I can contact you.
